Memorandum from the Parliamentary Office

National Assembly : 392 (NO3727E)

Mr. G Mackay (DA) to ask the Minister of Energy:

How many licensed nuclear reactor operators are currently employed at the National Nuclear Regulator? NO3727E

Reply:

Operating licenses are issued by the NNR to operators at the Koeberg Nuclear Power Plant. Once a person is issued with a licence, the licence remains active by continual training. Only personnel employed by Eskom for this purpose are eligible to hold such a licence. Personnel working for the National Nuclear Regulator would therefore not be required to hold active licences, but may have held an active licence before.

- (a) 1 employee at specialist level has held an active operator licence before.
