

Finally ...they have electricity!

Life will be easier for this one small community. Residents of the rural Seraleng community, outside Rustenburg, will now be able to cook food and do other household chores in the evenings, after they were connected to the electricity grid. The Energy Minister, Dipuo Peters, switched on the electricity in the small community last week. It was part of the government's Public Participation Programme which kicked off last Monday.

Daily Sun 2009/11/16